

DYNACORD®, ELECTRO-VOICE® AND MIDAS® AT TECHNO SPECTACULAR IN BUDAPEST, HUNGARY

At the end of August, Budapest was the scene of a techno parade with over 300,000 fans in attendance. No less dazzling than the costumes was the sound, with Pro Audio Systems Ltd (using equipment from EVI Audio) turning in the best performance.

Budapest, Hungary/Straubing, Germany, (November 26, 2003): Whilst Berlin's Love Parade seems finally to be undergoing a decline, the concept of multi-coloured disco floats, thumping techno rhythms and scantily clad young ravers is catching on in more and more European countries. Hungary is a prime example. This year's Techno Parade in Budapest drew a record attendance, well in excess of 300,000.

A winning team: Pacha Disco & Dynacord V-Systems

The Hungarian mega-rave featured no fewer than 50 imaginatively decorated floats, each with its own cast of extravagantly attired dancers, all vying for attention. The competition between sound systems was just as hot, with the most impressive performance coming from Pacha, Budapest's best-known discotheque. Hungarian sound company Pro Audio Systems Ltd used EVI equipment exclusively, the centerpiece on the Pacha float being a Dynacord V system. “When the parade was over,” commented Endre Reh, the MD of Pro Audio Systems Ltd, “the organizer approached us to say that ours was the float with the best sound.”
